MUST SLACK ITS SPEED

MAYOR HAS NOTIFIED THE MANAGEMENT OF THE INTERURBAN LINE THAT THE CITY WILL NO LONGER TOLERATE FAST RUNNING OF ITS CARS THROUGH THE TOWN—AFFIDAVITS MAY BE FILED.

TWENTY-FOUR MILES AN HOUR

Citizen Times Car on Wednesday and Estimated that it was Going Much Faster Than the City Ordinance Allows—Copy of Herald Sent to the Management of the Road.

The Interurban line must stop running its cars through the city at excessive speed or the city will file against the company for exceeding the speed limit. This was the declaration of Mayor Hays after having read in the Herald last night that a car had been run down Seminary st. on Wednesday morning at the speed, estimated, of 25 miles an hour.

Mayor Hays immediately after reading of the occurrence, marked a copy of the Herald and sent it with a letter to the General Manager of the Interurban. Marshal Reeves, upon the orders of the mayor, was active also and secured the names of the conductor and motorman in charge of the car. Affidavits will be filed against them, if the citizen, who timed the car, will testify against them.

Marshal Reeves stated this morning that he has on several occasions warned the company against speeding the cars through town but that his warnings have accomplished nothing. He states that there will be no more warnings and that the company will be prosecuted the first time evidence against it is secured.

THEY ELOPE TO KENTUCKY

Miss Della Lemmink, Daughter of J. W. Lemmink, the Dairyman, Runs Away With Thomas Henry, Who Formerly Worked For Her Father—Left Last Night For "Old Kentucky."

PARENTS WERE NOT TOLD PLANS

Without telling her parents of her intention Miss Della Lemmink, daughter of J. W. Lemmink, the dairyman, who lives just south of town, left home last evening and with Thomas Henry, a young man who formerly worked for her father, took a train for Kentucky. It was their intention to be married in Kentucky today and to return to Greencastle tomorrow.

Miss Lemmink is 19 years old and Mr. Henry is 22. The young folks fell in love while he was in the employ of Mr. Lemmink. After he left the employ of Mr. Lemmink he went to Floyd township, where he secured work. The elopement was the culmination of the love affair.

Mr. Henry formerly lived in Mercer county, Kentucky. He came to Greencastle last summer and has been here ever since. The young folks expect to make Greencastle their future home. Mr. Lemmink, this afternoon, stated that he knew nothing of the marriage. He said his daughter left home last night, but that he did not know where she had gone.

ASKS FOR $5,000 DAMAGES

Mrs. Rosa Farris Brings Suit Against the Vandavia Railroad Company For Personal Injuries.

ACCIDENT WAS AT LIMEDALE

Suit has been filed in the circuit court in which Mrs. Rosa Farris asks $5,000 damages from the Vandavia railroad for injuries received on the road. The complaint alleges that Mrs. Farris took passage on the train from Reelsville to Limerdale. That she was alone and unaided and was carrying a two-year old child and a large valise. At Limerdale it was dark and rainy and when she attempted to alight from the train there was no one there to assist her. While climbing down encumbered with the child and the valise, the train started and she was thrown, and though caught by a bystander, was nevertheless severely injured in the back. The effects of the injury have been permanent and painful. She asks for $5,000 and other relief.

The plaintiff is represented in the case of Allee and Hughes.

THE 30-CENT LEAGUE GROWS

Insulting Remark of New York Republican Paper Produces League That Will Mean Much in the Campaign.

George R. Dale, of Hartford City, who launched the Thirty Cent League as the result of the sarcastic editorial of the New York Tribune, which read: "Who will give 30 cents to Bryan's campaign fund?" is receiving letters and contributions from all parts of the country. He has a letter from Governor C. E. Haskell, of Oklahoma, the national chairman, acknowledging a remittance. T. J. Ing, of Austin, Texas, has written him a long letter, and said he would not miss it for 40 cents.

Congressman Robert Baker, of Brooklyn, New York, who made a sharp reply to the New York Leather Belting company, which asks industrial interests to support Taft and Sherman, has also written a letter. Mr. Baker is the author of "Where is the Full Dinner Pail?" He lands 30-cent plan and asks for the officers and the plan of organization with a view to taking up the New York State end of the National Thirty-Cent League. Mr. Dale expects to go to Salem at the opening of the Democratic campaign next week. It is the intention of the founder of the League to make the Thirty Cent League a thorough organization in the Eleventh congressional district.

EEL RIVER FALLS IS SOLD

CAPITALISTS HAVE PURCHASED STEINER LAND NEAR CATARACT AND WILL ERECT THE GREATEST ELECTRIC POWER PLANT IN THE STATE—WILL BUILD A DAM 50 FEET HIGH TO COST $150,000.

THE PRICE PAID IS $169,000

Deal Included Steiner, Lowry Brown and Warren Meek Farms, Which Consist of 1300 Acres—Electric Railway Planned—Light For Every Town in the State.

CLOVERDALE, Ind., August 21, 1908:—(Special to the Herald) A party of capitalists have just closed a deal whereby they come into possession of the Steiner land at Cataract, whereon is situated the celebrated Eel River Falls. The tract embraces both the upper and lower falls. The tract embraces both the lower and upper land for which the Co. paid $150,000. They also purchased the Lowry Brown farm of 200 acres for $12,000 and the Warren Meek farm of 103 acres for $7,000. This gives the company possession of all the land between the two falls, extending from hill to hill on either side of the river. A dam 50 feet high, and estimated to cost $150,000 is to be built just above the lower falls, which will make a reservoir between the falls covering 600 acres. Power houses will be erected at the lower falls and the greatest electric plant in the State established.

A traction line from Indianapolis will pass through Cloverdale and across the top of the dam, thence to Poland and on to Terre Haute. It is said that the proposed plant will be sufficiently powerful to generate electricity adequate to the lighting of every town in the State of Indiana.

SHULTZ FAMILY REUNION

Several from Greencastle were in Clay county yesterday to attend a reunion of the Shultz family. The Brazil Times says of the occasion as follows:

It was a reunion of the cousins of the Shultz family that was held at Poland at the home of the late Henry Shultz, when his children entertained ninety-six cousins of one family. Think of ninety-six cousins of one family meeting at one time and feasting at the same festive board. Besides these there were a number of these cousins that are grandfathers, and many of the children of these grandchildren were present yesterday. The day was spent in feasting and a good time. There were cousins present from Chicago, Brazil, Terre Haute, Indianapolis, Greencastle, Linton and many other places.

CHANGE IS TAKEN BY CO.

Mayor Shattuck Will Appoint Judge of the City to Hear Cases Against Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction Company.

CHANGE BUT IN ONE CASE

Attorney A. W. Knight appeared for the Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction company in Mayor Shattuck's court this morning, and took a change of venue from the mayor in the first of the cases brought by the city against the city against the traction company for violating the speed limit of six miles an hour within the city.

Mayor Shattuck announced that he would appoint a special judge of the city court tonight or tomorrow morning to hear the case. The time for the hearing will be set by the special judge appointed by Mayor Shattuck.

Mayor Shattuck stated that he desired to consult with the members of the City Council this evening before appointing a special judge in the traction cases. T. W. Hutchinson was appointed special judge in the traction freight cases, but it is hardly likely that he will be appointed in the present instance as he found against the city in the previous cases and the city does not like to be beaten, regardless of the merits of the case.

Nearly thirty cases in all have been brought against the traction company by the city, but the change of venue is taken in but one case. This one will be taken up as a test case and in the mean time the other cases will remain on file in Mayor Shattuck's court.

It is expected that an argument will be reached tomorrow between Attorney Knight of the traction company and the special judge to be appointed by Mayor Shattuck for an early trial and the test case, as both the city and the traction company are anxious to have the city's traction ordinance tested.—Brazil Democrat.

THE ALLEN REUNION

The eleventh annual reunion of Allen's was held Thursday, the 20th on the picnic grounds at the old homestead north of town. There were only, about sixty of the family in attendance, one branch of five families being absent on account of F. B. Gardner of Crawfordsville now in an Indianapolis hospital.

The morning was given up to the usual greetings and preparations for the dinner which is always a big part of a picnic. It was unusually bountiful spread on the occasion which held the feasters long into the afternoon. A short business meeting followed at which last year's officers were re-elected. Mr. Robert Allen president; Mrs. Lou Baker, secretary and treasurer and letters from absent members of the family were read.

Mr. Cammack, the photographer, made several group pictures during the afternoon, the last taken while the family was enjoying a watermelon "feed".

One source of enjoyment for all was the collection of old photographs gathered from numerous forgotten albums, showing the aunts and uncles as children, or belles and beaux; in their grand old time dress. The special attractions provided for the young set were swings, a flying jenny and a trolley line.

Those in attendance living out side the county were: Miss Lou Evans, Mrs. Allie Devore, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Evans and children of Crawfordsville; Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Church of Yates Center, Kan; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bryan, of Indianapolis; T. J. Brant, of Bloomington; Garnett Brington of Clay City; Allee Gilmore, of Cranford, N. Y. Mrs. O. J. Kern and son of Robert, Ills., and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Young, of Roachdale.

THE PEOPLE SHOULD KNOW.

Recently the Indianapolis Star declared editorially that the readers were utterly careless of the persons and personalities behind the great papers. That they did not know and did not wish to know who owns, or edits the papers. In general this may be true, but there are many exceptions to the rule. Especially during a political campaign ought the public to know the men and motives behind the great papers. To illustrate take the example of Harper's Weekly. Here is a paper that poses as an independent magazine, one that gives both sides and shows no political bias. This paper has, for several years, made a desperate fight upon Roosevelt and has now attacked Bryan. Unthinking readers, not familiar with the men behind Harper's, may be unduly influenced by the record of this paper and its present attitude. The facts are that Harper's Weekly is not the Old Harper's Weekly at all. It will be remembered that some years ago Harper Bros. failed and went into bankruptcy. When the stock was sold J. P. Morgan bought a controlling interest in the plant, and at once placed an instrument of his, Col. Harvey, at the head of Harper's Weekly. From the hatred of Morgan sprang the attacks on Roosevelt. DEMOCRATIC NEWS

What Good Democrats Over the State Are Saying About Things Political in Indiana And Elsewhere.

THE RULE OF THE PEOPLE.

The Republicans effect to make fun of the statement of the Democratic platform and candidates that the great issue, is: "Shall the people rule?"

"It is no issue," says Mr. Sherman. "Surely the people shall rule. Surely the people have ruled. Surely the people do rule."

The same statement comes from a great many Republican sources. They all assume that the people have ruled all the time, are ruling now and will rule hereafter.

It suits the purposes of Republican organs and Republican public men to foster the idea that the people rule in this country, and have been doing so all along. At other times, however, when an issue of this sort has not been presented, there has been a free administration that the rule of the people in the United States is largely theoretical. Professional politicians are constantly so manipulating issues and candidates that there is left to the people little more than a choice of evils, and in making such choice they are often misled by false statements. Selfish leaders control a certain number of votes by methods entirely remote from an appeal to their better judgment. Some of the electors are bribed, still more of them are deceived. A coterie of active politicians shape tickets and issues to suit their own purposes, many of the voters are repelled by the seeming impossibility of accomplishing anything, and they stay at home when nominations are to be not more than a third of the voters made. In the recent primaries in Ill. participated, but the others are held to be controlled by an action in which they did not share. It may be necessary that this should be so, but it is plain that we stop short of a complete rule of the people.

For years a majority of the people have desired to see a reform of the tariff. But they have been dissuaded from insisting on it in various ways. Promises have been made to them by friends. Then, with singular inconsistency, it has been said that it is best to let well enough alone, and that in a time of great prosperity it is not well to disturb business by changing the rates of duty. The people were told that as long as the tariff was high enough prosperity was assured and employment might be had by everybody. Then a panic came on, and millions were thrown out of employment, but still the men whom the people had chosen to represent them offered no relief. As the tariff could not be revived in days of prosperity, it neither could it be done in adversity.

Mr. Sherman insists on the carrying out of the Roosevelt policies, yet Mr. Roosevelt has insisted again and again upon calling attention to the means by which malefactors of great wealth have defeated the wishes of the people. It has been demondegree the same thing is true of the Baltimore Sun. It is not the same paper that so long stood with the Democratic forces. It is a paper in which northern capital has largely entered and one largely controlled from Wall Street. Hence its turn from Bryan means little except a trick of the game. Surely the people ought to know who are the men behind the campaign opinions sent out by great papers and small ones too. These opinions are received as coming from one in authority. Often this is not true, and the people ought to know.

A BUILDING ORDINANCE.

We do not know whether Greencastle possesses an ordinance to regulate the construction of buildings in the city, but we do know that such an ordinance is necessary. There should be some regulations as to the kind of building that shall be allowed to go up in certain parts of the city. It would be a crime to allow a wooden structure to be put up now upon the square. It is almost as bad to allow a shanty to be put on one of the residence streets in the midst of houses of excellent appearance. It detracts from the value of these houses already built, gives an unsightly appearance to the street and makes our city unattractive to visitors and outsiders, looking at our town with a view of settling here. To plant a colony of shanties or unsightly small houses in the midst of good residence property is to introduce an uncongenial element into the neighborhood, and would make unsightly what would otherwise be harmonious and pretty.

strated that the Republican party is under the domination of men of this stamp. Mr. Sherman himself owes his nomination to the fact that he is a reactionary. The men back of him rely upon the Senate to defeat any legislation that may be approved by the next House if it should be Democratic. They have no notion of permitting the country to be governed by the untrammelled wishes of the majority of the people. Under Republican auspices the House is governed by the Speaker, and in many instances the wishes of the people are disregarded.

The people rule in theory but these are far from controlling the destinies of the country in the way that they should. Mr. Roosevelt's numerous tirades against despotic plutocracy antagonize Mr. Sherman's pretty figure of speech. If the people ruled, why those oratorical explosions?—Courier Journal.

NEWS FROM ILLINOIS.

Millard F. Dunlap, a prominent Illinois banker, who has been selected for the secretaryship of the finance committee of the Democratic National Committee by Chairman Moses D. Wetmore, will be stationed at headquarters in this city throughout the campaign. Mr. Dunlap will give part of his time and attention to the political situation in Illinois, where he predicts an old time victory for both the national and state tickets.

"I believe the Democrats will win in Illinois this year," was Mr. Dunlap's comment. "There are many reasons to justify this statement. The Republicans are torn to pieces as the result of factional troubles, while on the other hand Democrats of all kinds are enthusiastically supporting the national and state tickets. The nomination of Adlai Stevenson was wise in every respect and will materially strengthen the party and contribute to success this fall. The wisdom, honesty and integrity of Mr. Stevenson is appreciated by all the people of Illinois without regard to party, and I predict his election as the next Governor of the State by a very substantial majority."

"The fact should not be overlooked that Illinois has an enormous independent vote, and in my opinion it will be with the Democratic party this year. The State gave more than 300,000 majority to Roosevelt four years ago, but the normal Republican majority is something like 100,000. This means that a change of 50,000 will put Illinois in the Democratic column and anyone who has followed the recent primary election will have little trouble in reaching the conclusion that there are more than that number of Republicans in the state who will refuse to accept party ticket. We will get the independent vote this year. In fact many voters who have not affiliated with the party since 1892, are enthusiastically supporting Bryan and Kern and the state ticket."

The work contemplated is that of organizing an experiment station and agricultural school in the Province of Manchuria.

The Wooing of Wilhelmina.

By Cecily Allen.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Of Wilhelmina's taste in dinner giving and the quality of her hospitality there could be no question. The first was above reproach; the second, like that of energy, was not strained.

Of Wilhelmina's ability as an artist, however, there was very grave question indeed. Those who had no desire to defer to her dinners were very apt to pronounce her pictures dabs, which will explain why Dolson drew Remington aside and reviewed the situation. Dolson was taking Donald Remington, who had just returned from a year in England, to enjoy one of Wilhelmina's Sunday night dinners.

"You see, she hasn't had a fair chance yet, but she's awfully ambitious, and we all have hopes." Remington nodded understandingly. He knew the type of artist, though the rosy colors in which Dolson had painted the dinner prospective had rather confused him.

"They lived on a farm—her folks had all kinds of money, blooded stock and all that—and they sent her to boarding school. You know how those finishing schools kill one's style."

"I WANT TO BE YOUR TEACHER," HE SAID GENTLY.

"From finishing school to studio, eh?"

"Not much. You mustn't make any mistake. She isn't exactly a spring chicken. She'll never see thirty again. But we call her Wilhelmina because she likes it—makes her feel as if she was one of us."

"So does art defer to appetite," murmured Remington as he lit a fresh cigarette.

"Well, you wait. She went back home from school and took care of both the old folks till they died, three weeks apart. Then she sold out everything in Indiana and set up her studio here in New York. She's brought along a lot of the family heirlooms, mahogany, hand woven stuff and all that, and it's the greatest spot ever!"

"How about her pictures?" interrupted Remington good humoredly.

"Well, say, you want to be careful about those. She took the correspondence course in art after she went home, and you know what that means. She's an impressionist, and—"

"Never mind harrowing details. I am prepared for the worst."

Three minutes later he was standing, stricken dumb, in a most gracious presence. As he looked into her clear gray eyes, well set beneath a broad white forehead, he remembered having seen just one such face in his busy life. It was the face of an Englishwoman of title, whose peculiar gifts as a mother had made her greatly beloved of men.

"Did any one ever tell you how much you resemble the Countess of W.?" he demanded suddenly.

Wilhelmina flushed faintly and shook her head.

"You are so English that you don't seem to belong here at all!" "Oh, but I do belong here, and I'm every inch American. I have a latch-key of my very own—and no English girl has that."

All during dinner Remington watched his hostess curiously. She seemed so utterly out of place among her guests, harmless, irresponsible chaps, hanging on the ragged edge of art's prosperity, uncomely girls with enormous mops of hair and yellowed fingers which spoke of the cigarette habit.

"Looks like a Madonna among a bunch of dime museum freaks. It's a shame to spoil a good house mother to make a poor artist. Gad, what taste she had in hangings and fittings!" For Remington was an architect and a good one. He could size up the refinement and true artistic instinct as stamped on a home, irrespective of cost or pretense, and he knew that so far as homemaking was concerned Wilhelmina Stevens was an artist.

Perhaps that was why, when he caught his first glimpse of her canvases, he almost groaned aloud.

"Those birches are wonderfully true," he heard Dolson explain, and he knew that the boy had picked out the one best point in what he felt was a landscape gone on a Saturday night's spree.

The pathos of her pose was to him fairly fascinating. Often after that he came to the studio, and always his heart sank within him as he realized how absorbed and determined was this lovable, young-old woman. She reminded him of a family friend who would sit enraptured at grand opera or concert and yet who could never strike a single true note or carry a tune and who wept because singing her babies to sleep was a boon denied.

Remington dropped in to see Wilhelmina oftenest when he was sure of finding her alone. He avoided her dinners and teas and chafing dish suppers. He found Wilhelmina's society a real inspiration in his work, for Remington had a mission. He wished to transplant to the suburbs of New York the love of old English architecture which he had absorbed during his year in the English provinces. And Wilhelmina not only appreciated English architecture, but she seemed instinctively to grasp its fundamental principles.

Remington had not dared to tell her how much he had depended upon her working out his plans for the cottage contest in the "ladies' round the year" guest. That was why, with triumph lightening his heels and brightening his eyes, he rushed into her studio one stormy March day, the letter of supreme importance held aloft. And Wilhelmina sprang up abruptly from the mass of pillows on her divan and tried bravely but ineffectually to hide her tears.

Remington stopped, joy freezing on his lips at sight of her obvious grief. "Wilhelmina, what has happened? Tell me at once."

"Daniels sent me home—told me to pack up my brushes and go away. His class was not for such as I."

The wretched truth was out. Daniels, whose special course at the academy was for the chosen few, the few with money to pay, had turned her out, money or no money. Like many a genius, he declined to teach those who gave no promise.

And Remington realized bitterly that the blow had been doubly hard because of the false hopes raised in this woman's heart by those who had feasted at her board.

Like a flash from the skies came his inspiration.

"I am sorry if you are disappointed, dear girl," he said, drawing her gently down on the divan and gripping her hand firmly in his, "but it gives me the courage to tell you what I wanted to say for a long time. Will you drop still life and the figure, oils and studio life—and dig hard into architecture and interior decoration? That's your gift. I've known it ever since the first night I stepped into this room and studied your hangings. And she who helps to build a home is as great as she who paints pictures for its walls. Will you?"

"Do you think I could really?" His words had been balm to her aching ears. She raised those wonderful gray eyes to his brown ones, and her lips curved into a smile pathetically brave and womanly. And again Remington did the thing he had not anticipated. He bent over deliberately and kissed the lovely lips.

"I want to be your teacher," he said gently. "Not for a few weeks or months, but always. Why, you know we've done those cottage drawings together and won! Here's the letter. We'll build one of these very houses on the site I was showing you last week. In the attic we'll have our studio. Think of the houses we can plan there, with the whole of New York harbor to inspire us! And some day when Daniels wants us to design a house for him we'll laugh and turn him down."

"Donald Remington," she said, sternly suppressing the dancing light in her eyes, "do you call this a proposal of partnership or matrimony?"

"Look me in the eye and ask that question again," he said.

"I am thirty-four tomorrow," she murmured faintly.

"You are the loveliest woman in the world and the only one for me. I knew that the first time I saw you. Besides, I am of age myself. Will you marry me tomorrow?"

"It will not!" gasped the astonished Wilhelmina.

"Why not?" argued Remington. "Because I give a dinner tomorrow night to a crowd—and there is no time to call it off. It was to celebrate the coming of Daniels."

Just for an instant the shadow of regret fell upon her lovely face, and Remington, seeing it, took her in his arms.

"Bless the old bear! If he'd pronounced you a genius where would I have been?"

His Position.

"What is your name?" asked the justice.

"Leggett Fergrubb, your honor," answered the prisoner, a red nosed specimen of the genus homo.

"You are charged with vagrancy, having no visible means of support and being a common nuisance in the neighborhood. What have you got to say for yourself?"

"I hain't got no visible means of support, your honor, but that ain't my fault. I'm out of work."

"Have you tried to get work?" "I couldn't begin to tell you, your honor, how hard I've tried."

"I suppose not. How long is it since you have had any occupation?" "Bout a year, or it may be two years."

"What was your last job?" "I had a position in a barber shop."

"A position? What kind?" "Juxtaposition, your honor. I was next."

"Six months in the workhouse?" roared the police justice. "Call the next case!"—Chicago Tribune.

A PROCESS OF DEDUCTION

(Original.)

"Mac," said the chief to me, "take up the Peet case. He has been convicted of murdering Walker in his (Peet's) house. They were friends, and Peet has borne a good reputation. Pettingill, his attorney, has been in and says he has got a 'stay,' so that one more effort may be made to solve what he considers a mystery."

I took up the case with interest and went with Pettingill to the house where the murder had been committed. He showed me the lounge where Walker was lying asleep one warm September afternoon and the hole in the window pane through which the bullet had either entered or left the room. Pettingill would have claimed that it entered, indicating that Walker had been shot from the outside. But it went clean through Walker's head and made no dent in the room.

I'm a methodical man. If I weren't I wouldn't be a detective. Pettingill said that a search had been made for the bullet within the limit of the carrying power of a revolver and it had not been found. I examined the hole in the pane. I took into consideration also the direction of the shot from the only point in the room from which it could have been very well fired. There was a clean sweep outside of a mile without an obstruction, except several different houses from 500 to 1,000 yards away. I made up my mind first to find that bullet if I had to hunt six months for it.

After an hour chatting, thinking, examining, I went away, resolved to come back the next day with a small telescope with which to fix directions. The sun rose clear in the morning, with not a cloud in the sky. I brought my telescope to bear on the different houses in the way of possible shots. There was a sideboard in the room, and one of the directions I noted was along its top. On this top rested glass table articles, consisting of tumblers, finger bowls, etc. I made a diagram in my notebook of certain points outside, intending first to examine them and, if no bullet was found imbedded in them, to hire an army of boys to hunt on the ground.

One of the first points I searched was a barn in line with the sideboard and the hole in the window pane. I got a ladder and climbed to the peak of the roof. I hadn't moved my ladder more than two or three times before I found a suspicious hole. With my knife I dug out a bullet. It was not a pistol bullet, but a rifle bullet.

Of course it might have been fired into the barn by anybody. However, I got a piece of chalk and made a white round spot as big as a football. Then I went back to the house and, laying a cane on the sideboard, with little adjustment pointed it directly at my chalk mark. The hole in the window pane was in line. Still I had nothing to build on. I sat looking at the sideboard, racking my brain for some possible connection between it and the direction of the bullet. A decenter filled with water stood on the sideboard. Its body was round and smooth. The sun was shining on it, and the decenter concentrated the rays in a focus. Somehow I went out and got some gunpowder and poured a few grains on the cane where, if it were a rifle, the nipple would be. The focus of the sun's rays approached the powder which I had put in its path. Presently there was an explosion.

Remote as were the probabilities in the case, I began to be interested in the hypothetical structure I was endeavoring to find a foundation for. I confess I smiled at the connection which I was building as showing how far a man may reach out for a clue. This was as far as I had got. A clean pointing a flintlock musket over the sideboard would not need to pull the trigger—the sun and the decenter would do it for him.

But we detectives must follow a trail blindly. What firearms were there in the house? I searched and in a closet found a rifle. I took out an exploded cartridge. The bullet I had found fitted the metal case exactly.

This hypothetical germ that was developing in my brain suddenly took a start, but prudence forbade my hurrying on. I had found the rifle and the ball with which Walker had been killed, but had I not proved that Peet had killed him? Why hadn't the prosecution got on to the rifle? Lucky for Peet that they hadn't, though, since they had convicted him it made no difference.

I found a box of cartridges with the rifle and fitting one in it went downstairs, laid it on the sideboard and pointed it at my chalk target. The muzzle of my gun, the place where Walker's head had been, the hole in the glass, were all in a straight line. Had it not been for the focus of the sun's rays I should have proved Peet guilty. As it was the focus may have fired the gun.

Here was a cue to the solution. I questioned Peet, and he remembered that he had cleaned and loaded his rifle and laid it on the sideboard while he went upstairs. The sun, acting on the nipple through the decenter, had fired the gun. In the excitement attending the discovery of the murder some one had stood in a corner from whence it had been taken upstairs, where it was forgotten. Who took it away was never known, probably a servant.

This seems a very easy solution. That's because I happened to be on the right track. In ninety-nine in a hundred cases I would have been chasing an absurdity.

C. MASON BRADSTREET.

HIS PASSPORT NO GOOD.

Italy Holds That "Once an Italian Always an Italian."

When on my first visit to Italy after an absence of twenty-five years, furnished through I was with a passport from Washington with the great red seal of state and with my naturalization papers, I was amazed when I was arrested and put in a den of a prison reeking with filth and vermin because I had paid no attention to the Italian laws regarding the matter of military obligation. I was under the impression, as I am sure many Americans are, that when once I had sworn off my allegiance to the king of Italy and had become an American citizen I would be recognized as such and not be required to fulfill the obligations of an Italian citizen.

The experience was not amusing, and yet as I look back upon it there was a ridiculous side to it. When with great dignity and pride I pulled from my pocket my passport I expected to see the little Italian official gasp for breath and humbly beg my pardon. Imagine my feelings when, glancing at the American eagle on my papers and the signature of the secretary of state, I at the same time exclaiming, "Sono cittadino Americano" ("I am an American citizen"), he turned his back upon me and said "most indifferently, 'Fa niente; fa niente' ("That's nothing; that's nothing"). I was led away by two carabinieri and turned into a large room, where I found seven prisoners who were to be my companions for that day and night. The next day I was taken before the prefect of the province, and then it was learned that I was not obliged to serve the regular three years in the Italian army, not because I was an American citizen—that was not recognized—but because I was the only male in my family. The Italian theory is "once an Italian always an Italian." The government does not recognize the change of allegiance on the part of any of its subjects.—Antonio Mangano in "Charities and the Commons."

PAIN AND PLEASURE.

The Sensations That Come When a Person Is Hungry.

This is the way Rev. J. T. Mann in Spare Moments describes the way it feels to be hungry:

At Fort Barrancas, Fla., on April 4, 1898, I spent four minutes physically and spiritually between earth and heaven. Then a Yankee sergeant, believing me to be the wrong man, cut me down.

My first sensation when the barrel was kicked from under my feet was that a steam boiler inside me was about to explode. Every vein and blood vessel to and from my heart seemed charged with an oppressive fullness that must find an avenue of escape. The nervous system throughout its length was tingling with a painful, prickling sensation like the one which I never felt before or since.

Then followed the sense of an explosion, as if a volcano had erupted. This seemed to give me relief, and the pain gave way to a pleasurable feeling, one very desirable could it be secured without death. With this sensation a light broke in upon my sight, a light of milky whiteness, yet, strange to say, so transparent that it was easier to pierce with the eye than the light of day. Then came into my mouth a taste of sweetness the like of which I have never since known. And I felt myself moving on, with a consciousness of leaving everything behind. Then I heard the sweetest music, and it seemed that more than a thousand harps led in each part, accompanied by myriads of voices.

And the sensation of coming back to life after I had been cut down was as painful as the first feeling of hanging. It was acute torture. Every nerve seemed to have a pain of its own. My nose and fingers were seats of the most excruciating agony. In half an hour the pain was all gone, but I would not go through the experience again for the wealth of the Indies.

Russian Marriages.

The celebration of a Russian marriage sometimes extends over three days. At the wedding festivities the bride is expected to dance with the men one after another until she drops with sheer fatigue. It is a matter of pride with her to keep going as long as possible, and it is not unusual to find a bride dancing gayly after three days and nights of vigorous frolic. When a girl is dancing with a man she always holds his pipe. It would be regarded as extremely rude if a man should continue to smoke his pipe in such circumstances.—London Tit-Bits.

Takes both to make Good Wheat

POTASH

Good clover follows good wheat, but it takes Potash to set the clover.

Starved clover won't feed the crop that follows it. It needs a vigorous root and a sturdy growth for itself before it can gather nitrogen for you.

Give it a good start by enough Potash with your phosphates in this Fall's seeding of wheat or rye.

The clover will do the rest—you'll see when you cut the clover. Clover, timothy, rye and oats, for turning under, or a crop in rotation—all need more Potash than most commercial mixtures afford.

We can prove by hundreds of practical field demonstrations, what a 6 per cent. Potash application will do—15 pounds per hundred of fertilizer. Potash is profit. Buy the Potash first.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the untutored Indians have discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and in demonstration of this conviction, he publishes with pride the almost marvellous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver purgative, after heart tonic and regulation and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action. The reason why it cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This is amply attested by thousands of authentic testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhs, pelvic troubles, painful periods, prostrations, prolapses and other displacements caused by weakness, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines, and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

IN THE SEPTEMBER CENTURY.

A full account of the Wright brothers' aeroplane, the first popular statement of the experiments and the results thereof prepared by the inventors, will appear in the September Century. Accounts heretofore have been only brief statements of bare accomplishments, without explanation of the manner in which results were obtained. The article will have timely interest, from the fact that the brothers have contracted to deliver to the United States Government a complete machine, the trials of which are scheduled for the latter part of this month.

THE O'HAIR FAMILY REUNION

About 125 Members of the Family and Their Guests Attended the Annual Event and Have a Most Delightful Time—Officers For the Next Year.

The thirty-sixth annual reunion of the O'Hair family was held on Thursday August 20th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester O'Hair three miles north of Greencastle. The folks began to gather at an early hour with well filled baskets of eatables. The forenoon was devoted to hand shaking and conversation and at 12:30 all assembled around the well filled tables to eat. The dinner disappeared like frost before the sun. After everyone had eaten to their entire satisfaction the meeting was called to order by Harvey O'Hair, president. Song and prayer by Mr. Simpson O'Hair was followed by reading of the minutes of previous reunion by the Secretary, Miss Lillian O'Hair. Mrs. Lex Hillis played the organ. An interesting program was given. Rev. Dick and Rev. Hoagland of Greencastle made fine speeches; Mrs. Ella Brewer of Salem, Mo., a cousin who had not been seen in the family for 32 years gave a temperance reading; Mrs. R. L. O'Hair read several interesting and spicy letters written to the secretary by Miss Mabel O'Hair who is now touring Europe. Mrs. Bascom O'Hair gave a reading of Jas. Whitcomb Riley's "Old Glory." Mrs. Lex Hillis and Rev. Hicks sang a duet. Mrs. Osa Babers of Paris, Ill., was with the family as usual. Mrs. and children, Dr. Hoagland and son, Mr. Johns, Mrs. Hafford, Mrs. Fred Goodwine were other guests from Greencastle. A goodly number of other friends and neighbors swelled the crowd to over one hundred. It was one of the most interesting reunions the families ever had.

Mr. Greenburg O'Hair was elected president for the ensuing year. Mrs. Chas. Huber of Crawfordsville, secretary and Henry O'Hair, treasurer, ice cream, cake and lemonade and water-melon were served late in the afternoon and all departed saying they had had a good time; thanking Mr. and Mrs. O'Hair for their kind and thoughtful hospitality and looking forward with bright anticipation to the next yearly meeting with Mr. and Mrs. Will O'Hair.

A REVIVAL AT MT. HEBRON

Sunday, August 30 is the date set for the series of special meetings. They will be in charge of Rev. Harris the pastor who has been very fortunate in securing the services of Miss Marie Detener of Terre Haute and Miss Marie Holston of Riley, Ind., and Mrs. Maggie Miller of Terre Haute. The services will continue every evening at 7:30 for two weeks or probably longer.

Miss Holston is a devout young lady having been sanctified at the age of sixteen and is thus living according to convictions. Her very presence brings joy and happiness to those whom she comes in touch with.

Miss Detener is a prominent member of Trinity M. E. Church and has always been where duty calls. She has done a great work in her home church and her every day life speaks forth the pleasure of the "In-dwelling Christ." To meet her is to admire her.

Mrs. Miller has for years been working in Home Missionary work. She has devoted much of her spare time to the comforts of the poor, soliciting clothing and fuel. Her Christianity shows its power by her every day life. Her presence is a blessing to the community.

In bringing these workers to this community we wish to state that they are not a kind of people that are lazy and expect God to feed them, but they are working people and should receive the respect of the entire community. Every religious workers are invited. Everybody welcomed. Let us join together for the salvation of precious souls.

PUTNAM COUNTY HOSPITAL FAIR

The ladies on the committee for the hospital association fair to be held here beginning Thursday October 1st are working earnestly to make this the greatest attraction Greencastle ever had. We hope to meet with approval for this necessary institution, with which we are so far behind our sister cities. It ought to appeal to the citizens of Putnam county that we are making great progress in many ways and we ought to give this one sincere thought and encouragement. If each and every one would do all in his power to further this charitable object there would be no need of going outside of our county.

We have enough able citizens to keep up the credit of our country and we are proud of it. And as the seed of this noble work has been sown and is now budding, let us all join to enrich the ground for this flower of charity to bloom in reality. Perhaps all the people do not understand that this hospital is not to be for tuberculosis, or contagious diseases. It is to be a free hospital with a door of hope open to all who seek it, and fully equipped with all comforts, and with experienced physicians and nurses in attendance. No doubt many physicians have experienced sad cases where their patients could not receive the necessary care through poor circumstances.

We hope to change this by furnishing a place, where all cases may receive attention that will give them a chance for their recovery. There will be novel attractions at the fair and useful articles for sale and no high prices will be asked. There will be something every house hold will need. A ten cent counter will furnish attractions and a Japanese tea-room will give the ladies a chance to rest and enjoy a cup of fresh tea. Santa Claus, dolls and toys are expected to be numerous. All will find it worth their while to attend, and on their return home will feel their money has been well spent and for a good cause.

We suggest that 500 people of Putnam county give $10 each for this worthy work. This can be deposited in any of our banks and the president, Mrs. D. R. Maze will be notified.

We would like to name a few articles that may be suitable and convenient for donation:

Live stock.
Dolls.
Vegetables.
Fruits.
Butter.
Eggs.
Jellies.
Merchandise.
Furniture.
Toys.

Or any other valuable article. For further information regarding the fair call phone 574, or address Mrs. J. M. Belnap 611 Crown street.
